

Sometimes the wildest journeys take you to the most peaceful places.

Revive your inner spirit with rare adventure in Canada's untamed Northwest Territories. We're famous for breathtaking rivers and pristine lakes, for craggy landscapes that lure climbers and trekkers from all over the world. And for wildlife that acts as if it owns the place.

(Of course it does. In 1.17 million square kilometres, there's lots of unspoiled space to roam.)

If you're very experienced, power up for epic thrills. Kayak the turbulent South Nahanni, Canada's greatest wild river, or paddle the windswept Arctic coast. Trek the rigorous Canol Heritage Trail, 300 km of steep canyons, alpine barrens, soaring ridges, and treacherous river crossings. Or challenge the notorious Cirque of the Unclimbables. If you just want to go a little wild, join a rafting expedition on the mysterious tundra. Watch the caribou migration, howl with wolves and photograph shaggy muskoxen while you learn all about Arctic wildflowers and birds. Or visit a wilderness lodge where you'll hike and paddle at your own pace, enjoying 100% natural serenity.
