

... the drums, the drums, the beat of the drums... the beat of the heart... the throb of the land
 (from Drum Song by Jim Green)

You can hear the past in the chant of a Dene drumsong.

Everywhere you go in the Northwest Territories, tradition lives on. About half of our population is Dene, Métis or Inuvialuit. To learn more about Aboriginal culture and traditions first hand, choose from an array of experiences offered by Aboriginal-owned tour companies. Dene or Inuvialuit drumming is a popular component of most northern festivals and events. For more information on cultural tours in the Northwest Territories visit spectacularnwt.com/cultural
