

ADVENTURES ARE BIGGER IN THE DEHCHO

YOUR ROAD TO NORTHERN ADVENTURE

Named after the Mackenzie River, Dehcho is Dene for “big river”, and this route certainly lives up to its name. There’s no better way to see this iconic piece of Canada’s Northwest Territories than driving the Dehcho route. Whether you start in Dawson Creek, B.C. and head north or begin your journey in Grimshaw, Alberta to cross into the NWT, the Dehcho route will take you past the legendary Nahanni, along the powerful Mackenzie River, and through the vibrant communities that thrive on its banks. Historic landmarks, wild parks, well-serviced campgrounds and traditional and modern communities - this trip holds countless opportunities to be amazed and humbled.

On the Dehcho route, your possibilities for adventure are endless and your detours will be plentiful. No matter what draws you forward on your road trip, the Dehcho route is sure to have you planning a return trip to see even more.
